

Investing in a cyber-resilient organisation

How organisations are allocating their budget

Average spend on cyber-resilience is 1.7% of revenue. Approximately 1/3:

There's room for improvement

Executives don't believe their companies are spending enough on cyber-resilience.

What investments should look like:

How executives think that investments should be deployed:

A disruptive approach

Technology is necessary - but not sufficient alone and certainly no longer the differentiator it once was. As the emphasis shifts from cyber-security to cyber-resilience, business, processes and workforce considerations are becoming more important relative to specialised technical expertise.

