

Multinational adopts new underwriting and pricing platform

Case Study

The Client Challenge

A multinational client wanted to enhance its global underwriting and governance capabilities.

Our Solution

The project combined the expertise of our Insurance Consulting and Technology and Willis Re businesses to advise on best practice, governance and processes for underwriting as well as rebuilding, recreating and revising the pricing process to reflect evolving market practice and customer expectations.

The Outcome

Drawing on the expertise of Willis Re in managing and pricing extreme risks, along with market-leading analytical capabilities, modeling and technology from the Insurance Consulting and Technology business, the client established a more consistent approach to underwriting and a faster, more efficient pricing process that takes greater advantage of automation technology and data analytics, while also offering a dynamic platform for future development.

“Drawing on the expertise of Willis Re and Insurance Consulting and Technology, the client established a more consistent approach to underwriting and a faster, more efficient pricing process.”
